Congratulations for completing the course!

We hope that these last ten weeks of learning have met your expectations and that you are finishing this course with a hunger for more. You may have completed the course successfully, and so you should be able to access your certificate by the 20th of May, when the last extended grace period comes to a close. But even if you did not achieve enough points to obtain the certificate, we hope that your experience with the course was satisfying and that you feel more equipped to understand and to further learn human rights in the future.

In order to understand how your experience with the course went, we invite you to take part in an assessment survey of this course. You can do so by following this link (https://docs.google.com/forms/d/1w8-6zpRC-PothUIMBaRSOJO4P6_Xa3aYQpC5K8zEC3c/viewform). We estimate that doing the full survey will take at most 15 minutes. Please note that if you are having difficulties accessing the page, it might be because there are too many simultaneous accesses: we invite you to return to the survey a few minutes later.

Before turning to that, however, we invite you to watch the farewell video below.

CONCLUSION VIDEO

You are now at the end of the course.

It has been a very great pleasure to have you with us during these 10 weeks since the course was launched.

I would like to really very warmly congratulate all of you who have been through these eight sections.

And again, let me recall that there was, of course, a compromise to be made between the ambition to go in depth

in the understanding of human rights and the scope

that the course could achieve, in terms of which subject matters we would be examining.

I believe that with these eight sections we've
